HUXLEY FAMILY.

INTRODUCTION.

MOST families in the United States who trace their ancestry to New England, look back still further through New England to Old England for their origin. This is the case with the Huxley family. With these families, if the immigrant ancestor can be found at all, he is found to have come from England, when the colonies were being settled, and so his descendants are of early English ancestry. No known public records, and no private records in the Huxley family in the United States exist to show absolutely by an unbroken line, its origin or nativity, but the tradition in the family has been that the ancestor came from England. This tradition did not, however, or at least does not now furnish the answers to the more particular queries which press urgently for answers, such as: Who was he who came? When did he come? Where did he come from out of the broad expanse of all England, and where was the place of his activities there? Was he of London or Liverpool, or of what place was he? At what place did he land and where did he locate? What was his calling, business or status there, and what did he become here? and a hundred other cognate questions seek answers about each person whose name may be suggested as an immigrant ancestor of any family whatever. Only here and there can persons be found about whom these questions can be answered two hundred or three hundred years after death. With the vast majority no more extended history of them exists than that they were born and died and with a goodly per cent. not even this can be found. What they did to make up the sum of life no person has cared to preserve by monument or record against the ever destroying tooth of time and final oblivion.

The traditional English ancestor of the Huxleys in the United States is one of those in default of any known records accessible to the compiler to save his memory from the fate of having been lost, and so his existence totally forgotten and unknown by all living human beings. One or two slight "cues" exist, but they are too vague and uncertain to be relied on.

The Huxley family, so far as known, has always been few in numbers, both in England and the United States. Quite a large per cent. of its members in the United States have attained to 80 or 90 years, but fecundity did not seem to inhere in the family, and so perhaps the number of persons in the family is not greater now than two hundred years ago. It began at Hartford, Connecticut, in 1667, or perhaps more strictly in 1660 at New Haven, Connecticut, and the stream of its life flowed northward into Massachusetts at Hampshire county, and thence to the westward along the northern part of the state of Connecticut to its west boundary and again turned northward into Massachusetts, at Berkshire county, and most likely also into New York state, since some of them are known to be there; a part turned back to the eastward in Massachusetts, and a part went on westward into Ohio, and thence to Michigan, Indiana, Kansas, Iowa, Wisconsin and perhaps other states.

None remain in Connecticut; none in western Massachusetts; but few in New York and Ohio and eastern Massachusetts. They generally owned land and were farmers or engaged in occupations connected with the land. A few became lawyers, doctors, school professors, or engaged in some mercantile or mechanical business, but as far as known only one became a clergyman. However, some did in England. Nearly all of proper age at the time were in revolutionary war service, which, from our point of view as United States citizens, was highly commendable. Some also were in military service during the civil war as will hereafter appear.

The family in England was sufficiently ancient in point of time, but the slender accounts to be obtained from correspondence lack that definiteness and coherence which are necessary to a proper knowledge of the family.

The "Manor of Huxley" hereafter mentioned, with the residence thereon called "Huxley Hall" was, and still is, situated in Broxton Hundred in the county of Cheshire, in the northwest of England, and is in the parish of Hargrave, about 8 miles southeast of Chester, the principal city of Cheshire, and so would be about 24 miles southeast of Liverpool, and is further located as being about $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles from Tattenhall station on the London & Northwestern Railway. An ordnance map shows a road called Huxley leading eastward toward Tilston (5 miles) which road passes a place called Huxley Gorse, 2 miles from Huxley. A part of the solid stone walls of the old Manor-House still stand and are incorporated into the structure of a modern farm house, but no Huxley now lives there.

The original boundaries of the manor were straggling and the description vague and uncertain, giving but little idea of its real extent and contents, but at present the area is said to be about 1,500 acres and contains a population of 260. The Benedictine Abbey or Monastery of St. Werburgh founded by Hugh Lupus, Earl of Chester, in 1070, was at Chester, and it received title to these lands with much other lands in the vicinity of Chester, from William the Conqueror between 1066 and 1093. The king's ability to make this bestowal was by the seizure of lands from former owners who were considered to be his enemies or who would not attorn to him, but whether these lands before that time were called the "Manor of Huxley" and owned by such a family is not known. Huxley is not named in Domesday Book, but is said to be comprised under the name of "Hodesleia" (whatever that may be) contained in the foundation charter of the Benedictine Abbey of St. Werburgh, but omitted in the enumeration of those estates in Domesday Book.

All present titles to land in England start from Domesday Book of William the Conqueror, in 1066, and the new family and owner soon came to bear the name of his land. Thus "Richard de Huxley" simply meant Richard of Huxley (land). In the 31st year of Edward III, 1333, a writ in quo warranto was issued under authority of the crown against the Abbot of St. Werburgh to show by what authority he exercised franchises within various manors of which "Huxlegh" was one, showing the approach toward the present spelling of the name.

The growth in spelling the name has been from the Latin Hodesleia to the English Hodeslegh—Huxlegh—Huxley.

Most all of the small towns or villages mentioned in the descent of title to the Manor of Huxley given in the succeeding pages, such as Aldersey, Brindley, Clotton, Duddon, Darnhall, Ecclesfield, Macclesfield, Tattenhall, Wettehall, Waverton, Upton, etc., are in Cheshire and from 5 to 15 miles southeast of Chester. These places and the Huxley family are described by Ormerod in his history of Chester and Cheshire, published about 1820, as also in a more recent edition of the same work by Thomas Helsby in 1882, both out of print and difficult to obtain. However, the compiler has been able recently to obtain a copy of the Helsby edition of this work, consisting of three ponderous tomes of about 1,000 pages each, and it clearly shows historically that the family had a location there for the past eight hundred years or more, and this is something not known outside of England and the United States. In Helsby's History of Cheshire in volume 2, at page 797, et seq., the Huxley family and their land holdings in the county are described, and the genealogical descent of title to the land given in some of the succeeding pages herein was mainly taken from that work. A full copy of the Charter of St. Werburgh Abbey above referred to in the original Latin and bearing date of 1093, is also contained in this History.

It will be remembered that by the laws of primogeniture in England the title to land was cast upon the eldest son, so that at each descent the younger sons were dropped out, unless in some way they received title from the elder son, or from some other source, and so far as the land title was concerned they were not again heard of. They went into the professions or army or other business not relating to the land, so that their relationship to the family would not be found with the land titles, but must be sought elsewhere. From this source parts of the family drifted southward to Lichfield and New Castle-on-Tyne in Staffordshire, and Coventry in Warwickshire, Essex, Devonshire, and perhaps other places, and thence to London. A few years ago a Charles Huxley and a John Huxley were at the Potteries, near New Castle in Staffordshire; the well known Thomas H. Huxley, born at Ealing, near London, in 1825, lived and died at London, and no person's writings are better known than his on both sides of the Atlantic; his son, Prof. Leonard Huxley, is now connected with the endowed school at Godalming, in the county of Surrey, 32 miles southwest of London. Within the past year he had published a life of his father consisting of two large volumes which is meeting with a liberal sale in the United States. It gives an excellent insight into the inner life, labors and successes of a man who was, in the best sense of the term, one of nature's real noblemen.

In a catalogue of the Judges of Chester, collected out of the old deeds and charters, and out of the recognizances in the Exchequer is found the following:

"Idem Reginaldus, 55 and 56 Hen. 3. Robertus de Huxley, ejus locum tenens, anno. 1271."

Among the Sheriffs of Chester the following appears:

"SUB HENRICO TERTIO

1266 Robert de Huxley, 50 Hen. 3." 1279.

SUB EDUARDO PRIMO

1272. Robert de Huxley, tempore Gozelini de Baldesmere lib B p. 31 m., about 4 Edward."

In a different list of Sheriffs the following may be found:

1350 and 1351. William de Huxley.

1842. Thomas Huxley.

In a list of Gentry in the County Palatine of Chester appears:

Ralph Huxley of Sidnall in Broxton Hundred.

George Huxley, Nantwick Hundred.

BAILIFFS AND CLERKS OF THE MILLS, ETC., OF THE DEE.

1428 Johi. de Huxley, contrarotulatori Molendnor de Dec de ordinacoe, etc., p. annu. xl s.

However, these are fragmentary items, and with the Genealogical Descent given in the succeeding pages, which was taken in large degree from the History of Cheshire, are only given to show the strong probability that the Huxley family in the United States, had its origin in England—no other source being known.

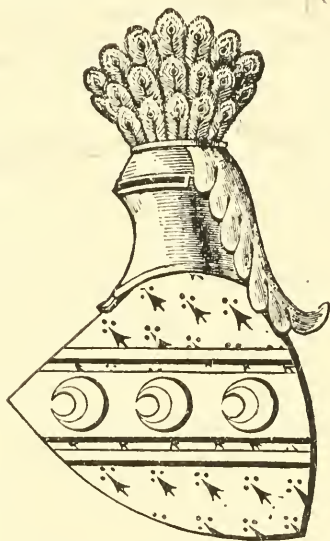

But how this occurred, with the when and the where, the compiler has not been able, with the time and facilities at his disposal to show. Other members of the family, having a taste for such research, or otherwise so disposed, may from this foundation of disconnected material work out the relationship and so be able to state in logical and historical sequence just how it all occurred.

THE SPENCER FAMILY.

Since it will appear in the Descent proper hereafter given that the Spencer family furnished the earliest maternal ancestor, it is thought best to show, as far as may be done, who the Spencers were at the time of, and before the colonial settlement of Massachusetts and Connecticut. The first we know of FRANCIS SPENCER and his wife Elizabeth is, that, for many years prior to 1636, when he died, they were rich Ale Brewers in London—not in the most reputable part—and she continued the business a few years thereafter. By wills they left large properties to their four sons, Richard, John, Thomas and JARRARD. The ancestor was a citizen and ale brewer, and thereby made the money, and he was also a member of the Church of England at St. Giles Parish, outside Cripplegate, London, all of which appears by the record. These facts transferred the sons to the Gentlemen class. The grandsons, at least those who descended from JARRARD, had property, and they all received bequests from their uncle Richard who died in London in 1646 and after they came to the colonies. They too were members of the Church of England, which was at that time the touchstone, the be-all and end-all of what was good, right and just. The dissenters and non-conformists in England were hated and despised, vilified, ostracised, persecuted, anathematized, convicted as guilty of crime and exiled or banished from England. The puritans with nearly the same ideas as the dissenters, but who did not leave the church, and who were the ruling power in Massachusetts did likewise with those who did not precisely conform with their views! So when the Spencers arrived at Boston in the years following 1630, Michael, Garrard, with its numerous spellings, THOMAS and William, all, at once, could and did become freemen, and took high and honorable rank among the colonists. They were thus qualified to hold office, and were at once called on to be officers and their standing and rank among the colonists were assured. They came certified by the church officials there, and that settled all doubt and controversy here. They were the peers of any colonist whoever he might be. The ale brewer's descendant was "On the throne, his satraps in the hall." The blood of the wicked and much hated and despised non-conformist with the views of the puritans was relegated to the rear. Thus truly the whirligig of time has its revenges.

All of the wills of the Spencers mentioned below were published a few years ago in volume —— of the New England Historical and Genealogical Register, at Boston. Elizabeth Spencer, the widow of Francis, provided in her will for her burial by the side of her husband in the church yard of St. Giles Parish, Cripplegate, London, which was accordingly done prior to 1646. Below follows a tabulated sketch of the Spencers, which shows how the maternal ancestor of the Huxleys was descended, and was taken largely from a Genealogy of the Spencer family published by one of its members not many years ago.

Francis Spencer—wife, Elizabeth—of St. Giles Parish without Cripplegate, London, citizen and brewer, born about 1575, and whose will was proved October 24, 1636, had 4 sons and 1 daughter.

1. Richard, gentleman of London, whose will was dated May 29, 1646, and proved June 8, 1646, in which he makes bequests "to Jarrard Spencer, THOMAS SPENCER, William Spencer and Michael Spencer, sons of my brother Jarrard Spencer, deceased," etc.
2. John, died before May, 1646.
3. Thomas, died before May, 1646.
4. JARRARD, died before May, 1646, but had 4 sons and 1 daughter, to-wit:
1. Michael, who was a resident of Cambridge, Mass., in 1635. Removed to Lynn, Mass., before 1639 and died before November, 1653, left 2 children.

In 1648, he drew a draft dated at New England, upon the executor of his Uncle Richard's will for his share of the bequest which draft is recorded with the will. This shows clearly where Michael was at the time, and what his relationship was to the testator and to his estate.

2. Garrard—was a resident of Cambridge, Mass., in 1634. Took free-or Gerard man's oath March 9, 1636-7. Resident of Lynn from Garret 1638 to 1659. Chosen Ensign of the Train Band in June, Gerret 1656. Removed to Haddam, Conn., about 1660 and died Jarrard between December 17, 1683, and September 3, 1685. Left Jarret several children.
Jared,
variously spelled.

3. THOMAS. He resided in Cambridge, Mass., in 1633, as stated in Paige's History of Cambridge at page 659, and in 1635 was recorded as the owner of several small parcels of land in Newtowne (now Cambridge) at the time of that record.

In the History of Suffield in the colony and Province of the Massachusetts Bay, at page 40, it is stated that he came from Braintree in Essex county, England, with Reverend Thomas Hooker's company in 1632, and went with him to Hartford. In Trumbull's History of Connecticut it appears that Hooker was silenced in Essex county as a non-conformist preacher and fled to Holland in 1630 to avoid arrest and prosecution; that in 1632 a large body of his partitioners came from Braintree, England, to Cambridge, and in 1633 he himself came in the ship Griffin, arriving September 4, with 200 more of his people, a few of whom are named, but THOMAS SPENCER is not named. But he was there, nevertheless, from about that time forward. On May 14, 1634, he took the freeman's oath. In 1636, he moved to Hartford, and in 1637 was in the Pequot Indian war, and for his services therein the General Court of Connecticut, in May, 1671, granted him 60 acres of land. In 1639, he is recorded as the owner of several small parcels of land in Hartford. In April, 1639, he was one of the deputies to the first General Assembly or Court in Hartford, etc. In March, 1649-50, he was appointed by the Particular Court as a sergeant of militia. In 1657, Constable, and 1672 surveyor of Highways. He was twice married, but of his first wife nothing is known, but there were 3 children: 1 Obadiah, 2 Thomas, married Esther Andrews, removed to Suffield, Mass., died July 23, 1689. 3 Samuel. His second wife, whom he married September 11, 1645, was Sarah Bearding, a daughter of Nathaniel Bearding of Hartford, whose will dated January 7, 1673, mentions "his son-in-law Thomas Spencer, and his 5 daughters" naming them. There were 6 children: 1 Garrard, born 1646; 2 SARAH, born 1647. She married Thomas Huxley in 1667, and with him removed to Suffield, Mass. 3 Elizabeth, born 1648; 4 Hannah, born 1651; 5 Mary, born 1655; 6 Martha, born 1657. Thomas Spencer died at Hartford September 11, 1687. His will recorded in Hartford Probate Records in volume 4, pp. 262-263, proven October 26, 1687, reads as follows: "The last will and Testament of Sargt. Tho. 4. William was a resident of Cambridge, Mass., in 1632. Took the freeman's oath March 4, 1632-3. He was a deputy to Massachusetts General Court in 1634-5-6-7. Was charter member of Military Company of Massachusetts in March, 1638. In March 1636-7 he was appointed "Leiftenant" of the military company of Newtowne. He removed to Hartford in 1639 and "At a Generall Meeting of the whole Towne the 23rd December, 1639, Their was then chosen to order the offayrs of the Towne for one yeare, William Westwood William Spencer, Nathaniel Ward, John Moody."

Townsmen or Selectman.

Hartford Town votes vol. 1, p. 13.

His will was dated May 4, 1640, and probated March 4, 1641.

In the Spencer family Genealogy it is stated it is thought William was the deputy to the first General Assembly under the first constitution of Hartford, but the dates hardly admit of his presence there at Hartford so early in the year and Trumbull in his history of Connecticut states that Thomas was the deputy, which is far more likely to be correct, since Thomas was a resident of Hartford from 1636 and William did not arrive at Hartford till after the first session of this court.

FIRST GENERATION.

1. THOMAS HUXLEY. He died July 21, 1721, at Suffield, Mass. While first stated, it was not his first act. Of his origin and youth the compiler has not found anything which can be relied on to show this. He appeared at the wedding at the residence of Thomas Spencer in Hartford, Conn., in May, 1667, and married Sarah Spencer, but from whence he came to the colony or how old he was remains a sealed book. Judging from his death, he was then between 20 and 30 years of age, and may have been born in the colonies about 1640-5, or he may have been the immigrant ancestor who arrived quite young. His name appears in Savage's Genealogical Dictionary in volume 2 at page 514, as one of the original settlers of the Hartford colony, and the names of his wife and children are correctly given, but no intimation is given from whence he came or who his ancestors were. There was a bequest of a gun to him in the will of John Wakeman, at that time treasurer of New Haven, probated in Hartford, in 1661, which was written in New Haven in 1660, and which indicates that he was in New Haven in 1660, and in the employ of John Wakeman, and in that year he took the oath of Fidelity in New Haven. John Wakeman removed from New Haven to Hartford in 1661, and died there. Since it appears that Thomas was in his employ at that time and not married, it is highly probable he also went with Wakeman to Hartford, but how he came to be in New Haven in 1660 and before, is the "Stone wall" up against which the compiler has landed in this search, without the means of passing over.

The slight "cue" referred to on a former page, consists of two items each obtained from two different sources. First it appears from the records of Suffield that one James Barlow was in Suffield in 1680 and on the 10th day of January, 1688, he married Sarah Huxley, and Savage in his Genealogical Dictionary in volume 1 in stating this fact says "She was a daughter of Thomas Huxley of Suffield; that a son James was born January 7, 1689, and that Barlow died March 16, 1690." That she was a daughter of Thomas Huxley is not credible, for he had a daughter Sarah who is well accounted for as hereafter appears and who could not be the same as this Sarah, who then may have been a sister of Thomas. If so, who was their father and where was he? Secondly, in Emery's History of the Ministry of Taunton, Mass., which is fifty or sixty miles directly east of Hartford, Conn., in a list of forty-five names of the first distribution of lands to settlers in Taunton in 1638, given on page 37 this entry appears:

"1 Henry Uxley, 8 acres."

A few years later he sold this land, but it does not appear where he went or who his family was if he had any.

Bailies in his History of New Plymouth, at page 288, under the subject Taunton, says: "At the head of the list of purchasers stands the name of Henry Uxley without the respectable prefix of Mr. None now can tell who he was, whence he came, or whither he went. His name is extinct; not a vestige remains, not a memorial exists to tell us what kind of a man he was, or at what period he sought the Indian Cohanet. His house and lot were sold to Richard Williams, and about him (meaning Williams) much is known, for he may in some measure be considered the father, if not the founder of Taunton." Bailies then gives the same list of purchasers as Emery, and begins it "1 Henry Uxley, 8 acres," etc., and on page 289 he says "It is also probable Henry Uxley, Richard Williams (and 6 others whom he names) were in Taunton previous to this period for most of these antient purchasers came immediately from Dorchester."

If he had a house, it is highly probable he had a family, and 'Uxley may have been the cockney English for Huxley, written in the records by the officer according to his own sweet will, for nothing then seemed to control anyone in his spelling, but no known record tells that Thomas and Sarah were his children though some suspicions are aroused.

Beyond this the whole matter rests in speculation without knowledge.

Sarah Spencer was born in 1647, and was a daughter of Sergeant Thomas Spencer and Sarah (Bearding) Spencer.

who was one of the original settlers in Hartford in 1636, and in April, 1639, he was one of the deputies to the first General Assembly, or Court held under the first free written constitution for the Hartford colonies adopted in January, 1639. This constitution divorced the church and state and contained the essential germ of all political liberty since found in the United States, in all written constitutions from that day to the present time, all of which clearly appears in Trumbull's History of Early Connecticut.

Upon the land records of Hartford in Book of Distributions, page 352, appears the first title of lands that any Huxley held in the United States, and is the 48th one in the colony of Connecticut and is as follows: "Land in Hartford upon River Connecticut belonging to Thomas Huxley and his heirs forever. One parcell which he received of Obadiah Spencer lying in the neck of land, containing by estimation four acres and halfe (be it more or less) and abutts on the common fence on the west, and on the swamp belonging to the north meadow on the east, and on Obediah Spencer's land on the north, and John Pantry's land on the south. Acknowledged by me, August 29, 1671."

"Witness, JOHN ALLEN, Recorder. OBEDIAH SPENCER.

JOHN PANTRY."

"More one parcell of land which he bought of John Pantry, with the consent of Capt. John Tallcott lying in the neck of land containing by estimation two acres of land, be it more or less; and abutts on the common fence on the west, and on the swamp belonging to the north meadow east, on John Pantry's land on the south, and Thomas Huxley's land on the north. Acknowledged the 29th of August, 1671.

"Witness hereto, Per me, JOHN TALLCOTT,

JOHN ALLEN, Recorder.

JOHN PANTRY."

THOMAS LEFFINGWELL."

On October 30, 1674, he sold this land to George Knight, and in company with his wife's half brother Thomas Spencer, removed his family to Suffield, Mass., where his wife died October 24, 1712. On the Distribution Book in Suffield it appears that by the award of the Selectmen in 1678 he received the title to 60 acres of land on the easts line of High street, and he afterwards acquired title to other lands. On October 13, 1669, he was made a freeman of Hartford colony as appears from the Collected Records of Conn., from 1665 to 1667 at page 518 and again on Oct. 12, 1681, he was made a freeman by the General Court at Boston, as appears from Col. Rec. of Mass., vol. 5, at pages 320-1, and owing to the importance and peculiarity of this regulation, and that Thomas was the only Huxley who attained to this distinction it is thought proper to make fuller statement of its significance.

Every one was then a subject of Great Britain and did not need to be naturalized in the sense as now understood, yet before he was permitted to exercise the right of suffrage, or hold any office, by the laws of the colony, he must be made a freeman, which prior to 1664 required him to prove by the certificate of the pastor of his church that he was a respectable member of the Congregational church, and after that date by a like certificate that he was correct in doctrine and conduct, but not necessarily a member. It is worthy of remark that out of the more than 22,000 immigrants from 1630 to 1691, not more than 2,000 ever became Freemen, so that while it has often been said the whole body of freemen in the beginning, met to make the laws and decide the policy of the colony, yet it is plain to see that the political power was in fact exercised by a small body of the real inhabitants, scarcely sufficient to make up the body of officers. The whole body of freemen and the whole body of the people were by no manner of means identical. The certificate was "The names of those men which desiar to tak ther freedom of this Comon Wealth, and are householders and members of ye church, are Thos. Spencer, Thos. Huxley."

Daniel ffisher,

Pastor."

The oath administered to Thomas on Oct. 12, 1681, was as follows: "I, Thomas Huxley, being by God's providence an Inhabitant and Freeman within the Jurisdiction of this Commonwealth; do freely acknowledge myself to be subject to the Government thereof: And, therefore, do here swear by the great and dreadful name of the Ever living God, that I will be true and faithful to the same, and will accordingly yield assistance and support thereunto, with my person and estate, as in equity I am bound; and will also truly endeavor to maintain and preserve all the liberties and privileges thereof, submitting myself to the wholesome Laws and Orders made and established by the same. And further that I will not plot or practice any evil against it, or consent to any that shall so do; but will timely discover and reveal the same to lawfull Authority now here established, and for the speedy prevention thereof.

Moreover, I doe solemnly bind myself in the sight of God, that when I shall be called to give my voyce touching any such matter of this state, in which Freemen are to deal, I will give my vote and suffrage as I shall judge in mine own conscience may best conduce and tend to the publike weal of the body, so help me God in the Lord Jesus Christ."

After taking this most formidable and iron clad oath, the record shows he was chosen a sergeant of militia at Hartford, and by a vote of the town of Suffield, Mass., in 1686, he was chosen a keeper of a "Public House of Entertainment" which was situated on High street. The records and History of Suffield further show that he was one of thirty-four legal voters in all town affairs, as recorded by Major Pynchon at the first town meeting held on March 9, 1682, and at the election on March 6, 1683, he was elected to the office of Selectman which he held, except in occasional years, till 1706. This was the highest and most important office in the town, and during all these years he was prominent in all public affairs, his name appearing frequently in the records and history of Suffield. His children, first five born at Hartford, were,

2. Thomas [11] born April 7, 1668.
3. John [13] born — 1670.
4. Mary, born — 1672. Married Ichabod Smith — 1692, and had 6 children.
5. Elizabeth, born — 1673; married James King, June 23, 1698, and had 9 children. She died Aug. 20, 1745.
6. Sarah, born — 1675; married Ebenezer Smith of Northampton, Mass., in 1693, and had 9 children. He was born — 1668, and a son of Samuel and Mary (Ensign) Smith. Second, she married Martin Kellog, Oct. 5, 1732.
7. Jared [17] born January 21, 1679.
8. Hannah, born February 3, 1681; married Mathew Copley February — 1701 and had 9 children.
9. Nathaniel, born August 26, 1683; died in 1685.
10. William [28] born June 26, 1687.

SECOND GENERATION.

11. THOMAS², [2] (Thomas¹), born April 7, 1668, at Hartford, Conn., died October 8, 1712, at Suffield, Mass. He was the owner of at least 8 acres of land on the west line of High street nearly opposite the land of his father on the same street as fully appears from the plat of the allotment of lands on this street, a copy of which plat is now in the possession of the compiler. In 1698 he was elected to the office of Fence Viewer. He married ——— about ——— 1689, and they had children.

12. Thomas, born ——— 1690. No further trace of this descent has been found.

13. JOHN² [3] (Thomas¹) born ——— 1670, at Hartford, Conn.; died April 15, 1722, at Suffield, Mass.; married 1st Elizabeth King, June 23, 1698. She died April 5, 1705, and married Experience Gibbs, Nov. 6, 1706. She was a daughter of Samuel and Hepzibah (Dibble) Gibbs, born April 4, 1673; died, April 28, 1740, at Suffield, Mass. His business does not appear of record, but he owned a few acres of land and was likely a farmer as most men were at that time, and at times he held such minor offices as constable, fence viewer, and surveyor of highways. The children were,

14. John, born June 12, 1700; died Dec. 2, 1700.

15. John [30] born July 12, 1707.

16. Elizabeth, born October 15, 1710; married Joseph Hastings June 22, 1732.

17. JARED² [7] (Thomas¹) born January 21, 1679, at Suffield, then in Hampshire county, Massachusetts, but now in Hartford county, Conn., and died there about — 1754. In order to understand the above statement relating to the locality, it must be remembered that at the original settlement of Suffield by Major Pinchon and his associates whose grant was from the General Court at Boston, it was a part of Hampshire county, in the Province or Colony of Massachusetts Bay and remained under the political jurisdiction of Massachusetts till 1749, when, upon a re-adjustment of the colony line between Massachusetts and Connecticut, the town of Suffield fell upon the south side of the line and became a part of Hartford county, Connecticut, and subject to its political jurisdiction, where it still remains and will be spoken of in this work as in Connecticut after 1749. In the History of Suffield at page 95 it is said "The history of the negotiations for the settlement of the colony line and the quarrels between the towns for many years often resulting in blows, would fill a volume." Jared married 1st Hannah Smith, November 5, 1706. She died July 5, 1708; one child [18] was born. 2nd married Mary Norton, May 5, 1709. She was the eldest daughter of Capt. George Norton (son of George Norton, a carpenter, who came from London, England, in April, 1629, and settled at Salem, Mass.) and his second wife, widow Mary Gillet, whom he married June 20, 1683. Mary was born at Suffield in July, 1684, and Capt. George Norton died November 15, 1696. He was a freeman in 1681, Captain of Militia, Inn Keeper, Selectman in 1685 and 1693 and was also the first Representative to the General Court at Boston for the town of Suffield in 1693.

Jared was a land owner and a farmer and at times from 1713 to 1723 held the minor offices of constable and surveyor of highways, and in 1720 he was a Tythingman. This office was at that time deemed very important and responsible. The incumbent of this office was much revered by the law abiding and much feared by the transgressor. The duties were "To inspect all licensed houses of entertainment and to inform of all disorders or misdemeanors committed in them, to present and inform of all idle and disorderly persons, profane swearers, or cursers, Sabbath breakers and the like offenders." The insignia of office was "A black staff two feet long tipped at one end with brass about three inches as a badge of office to be provided by the Selectmen of the town." The children were,

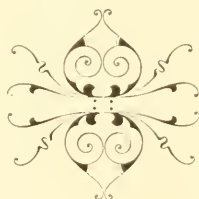

18. Johanna, born June 21, 1708. She married Moses Kent May 12, 1731, who was a son of Capt. John and Mary (Smith) Kent of Suffield, and who was born Sept. 5, 1710. Captain John and several other Kents were freemen and selectmen from the beginning. Moses Kent was first cousin to Moss Kent (their fathers, Capt. John and Rev. Elisha being brothers) a lawyer of Dutchess County, N. Y., who was the father of Chancellor James Kent, born at Phillipi, N. Y., July 31, 1763. James Kent was a member of the legislature of New York, from Dutchess County, Professor of Law in Columbia College, Judge of the Supreme Court of New York, and its Chief Justice for 10 years, and in 1814, he was appointed Chancellor of the Court of Equity in New York City. But his most enduring fame came from his Commentaries on American Law, written while a professor of law in Columbia College, in four volumes, and his Chancery decisions (Johnson's Reports) in seven volumes delivered while chancellor. These will endure while American Jurisprudence endures.

19. Jared [38] born June 14, 1710.
20. Mary, born May 12, 1712; married Aaron Gozzard of Simsbury, Conn., July 20, 1739, and died March 28, 1747.
21. Sarah, born July 22, 1714; died August 15, 1714.
22. Sarah, born July 1, 1716; married George Hayes of Simsbury, Dec. 1, 1739.
23. Mercy, born February 5, 1719; died February 6, 1719.
24. Mercy and } Twins [50] born Sept. 12, 1720.
25. Thomas, }
26. Abigail, born Nov. 2, 1723.
27. Elizabeth, born June 1, 1726.

28. WILLIAM² [10] (Thomas¹) born June 26, 1687, at Suffield, Mass., died about 1724; married Mindwell Pope, May 5, 1709. One child was born.

29. Mindwell, born December 21, 1723.

THIRD GENERATION.

30. JOHN³ [15] (John², Thomas¹) born July 12, 1707, at Suffield, Mass.; died about 1768 at Stafford, Conn. He married Naomi Gara April 24, 1733, at Suffield, Mass. She died Dec. 24, 1764. What his business was does not appear from the record except that he owned land in Stafford, Conn. The children were,

- 31. Anne, born Dec. 15, 1733. She married Abraham Granger at Suffield, Conn., on July 3, 1750, and had 4 children.
- 32. John, born August 7, 1735; died August 11, 1735.
- 33. Lucy, born May 5, 1737.
- 34. John [58] born April 30, 1739.
- 35. Phineas [70] born August 19, 1741.
- 36. Martha, born April 2, 1744.
- 37. Sarah, born Dec. 6, 1740.

38. JARED³ [19] (Jared², Thomas¹) born June 14, 1710, at Suffield, Hampshire county, Mass., died about 1791, at Canaan, Conn.; married 1st Martha Trumbull (spelled "Trumble" prior to 1774) February 9, 1729, at Suffield, Mass. She was born at Suffield Nov. 13, 1707, and died at Canaan, Conn., about — 1778. She was the second daughter of John Trumbull the second and Martha (Taylor) Trumbull, who was the eldest son of Judah Trumbull of Suffield. Judah was the second son of John Trumbull who came from New Castle-on-Tyne in Staffordshire, England, in 1639, stopping for one year at Roxbury, Mass., and who settled at Rowley, Mass., in 1640, as the minister of the first church there, at which place he died in 1657. Judah was born at Rowley in 1642, but removed to Suffield, Mass., in 1670, where he died in 1692. He held the offices of Land Surveyor and also of Selectman in various years, and his son, John the Second, was at different times elected to the office of Land Surveyor. Martha's father was first cousin to Joseph Trumbull of Lebanon, Conn., who was the father of Jonathan Trumbull, Governor of Connecticut from 1769 to 1783, and who, during the Revolutionary War was the trusted supporter and confidential advisor of General Washington, who familiarly called him "Brother Jonathan." The term has since passed into popular use as equivalent to the people of the United States.

The Governor had two sons, 1st Colonel John Trumbull, Assistant Adjutant General in the Revolutionary War, and a distinguished painter, his portraits of Washington, Adams and Jefferson, and the historical paintings of "The Battle of Bunker Hill," "Declaration of Independence," "Surrender of Burgoyne" and others in the Rotunda of the Capitol at Washington are among his most celebrated pieces. 2nd Jonathan, who, also, was governor of Connecticut eleven years, Speaker of the House of Representatives of the United States 1791-3 and United States senator from Connecticut 1793-5.

Another brother of Joseph Trumbull of Lebanon was Benoni of Hebron (the father being Joseph of Suffield, and brother of Judah) who was the grandfather of Rev. Benjamin Trumbull of Hebron whose History of Connecticut is most highly and justly esteemed. He in turn was the grandfather of Hon. Lyman Trumbull, United States senator from Illinois during the Civil War, and afterwards a most distinguished advocate and jurist. 2nd Jared married — Stanard; in the record she is called Widow Stanard, in 1780. No children by this marriage, and letters yet in existence show the marriage to have been very unfortunate and the cause of much trouble. He was a farmer in Suffield and owned several small pieces of land, which he sold February 9, 1753, and removed with his family to Canaan, Conn. He was an extensive buyer of lands in Canaan, and his land transactions also extended into Sheffield and New Marlborough, Mass., as will appear from the following abstract of deeds obtained from the Recorder of Deeds of Canaan, Conn., and Berkshire County, Mass.

"John Coone of Sheffield in the county of Hampshire in ye Province of Massachusetts Bay in New England to Jared Huxley of Suffield, county of Hartford, Colony of Conn. consideration, six hundred pounds, 28 acres in Canaan Conn. General John Fellows was afterwards Sheriff of Berkshire County, and later its representative in the state legislature. For a short time about 1790, he lived at Canandaigua, New York, where he owned 3,000 acres of land, but he died at Sheffield, Mass., in 1808. (Turner's Pioneer Hist. p. 174). FOURTH GENERATION.

58. JOHN⁴ [34] (John³, John², Thomas¹) born April 30, 1739, at Suffield, Mass., died at Great Barrington, Mass., about 18—. He was a laborer by occupation, but the records of land titles do not show that he was a land owner. The records of the French and Indian War show that he served in that war in 1756 and probably the year following he removed to Great Barrington, Berkshire county, Mass., for in 1757 he married Mary Highstead of Sheffield, Berkshire county, Mass. During the Revolution he enlisted as a private in Captain Aorson's company, 3d New York regiment of the line on Dec. 1, 1776, to serve during the war, but was discharged Jan. 25, 1779. He again enlisted at Great Barrington, as his place of residence in Lieutenant Person's company, Colonel Ashley's regiment, of Berkshire county men on August 20, 1781, and served during the war. He removed with his father Jared [38] to Canaan, Conn., in 1753, and at majority to New Marlborough, Berkshire county, Mass., where he died Oct. 11, 1794, and his will was probated and recorded Nov. 4, 1794, at Pittsfield, Mass. By the terms of his will he gave 25 acres of his land to his wife, with various other property during her life, and at her death all of his land and personal property went to his only son Asahel, but charged with the duty of paying thirty-two pounds to each of his four living sisters, and also to perform the testator's contract to support during life Samuel Camfield, the grandfather of Asahel.

He married Abigail Camfield Nov. 1, 1764, at Canaan,

Conn. She was a daughter of Samuel Camfield who was a Colonel of Militia in Litchfield County, Conn., in 1781. She was born in 1738 and died January 7, 1808, at New Marlborough, Mass. He was a land owner at the south line of New Marlborough, Mass., and the burying ground adjoining his farm is to this day called "The Huxley Burying Ground," and the school district, "Huxley School District" though no living Huxleys are to be found in that locality for more than thirty years.

He was a farmer by occupation, and most likely a weaver, since his will speaks of his "shop, loom and loom tackling, etc." which he bequeathed to his son Asahel. His children were,

- 63. Thankful, born August 22, 1765; died July 29, 1768.

 at Suffield, Hampshire

County, Mass., and removed with his father Jared [38] and his brothers Aaron and Jared [62] and their sisters to Canaan, Litchfield County, Conn., in 1753. He married Ruhamah Holcomb of Canaan, Conn., March 25, 1773, 1st church records vol 1. She was the daughter of Daniel and Sarah Holcomb, born about — 1743. On Nov. 29, 1775, he bought about 60 acres of land at the south line of New Marlborough, Berkshire County, Mass., upon which he continued to reside till a short time after 1814. After the death of his wife in 1800 his daughter took charge of his household affairs.

He continued to buy land in that vicinity till 1814 when he was the owner of about 230 acres. He was a farmer by occupation and was four times in service during the Revolutionary War with rank of Private. (For his Revolutionary War Service record see Military Services of Huxleys.) In 1814 he sold his land and the proceeds were invested by his sons in Western Reserve land to which they removed, and after settling the business affairs of the family in Massachusetts, he went to his daughter's residence in Livingston County, New York, and remained about one year, when he removed to Ellsworth, Ohio, and died there at the residence of his son Jared July 22, 1822, as appears from a letter yet in existence written little more than two years after, but the inscription on his monument in the cemetery at Ellsworth, Ohio, states the date to be August 13, 1823. He was the progenitor of all the Huxleys in Trumbull and Mahoning Counties in Ohio after 1814 and of their descendants wherever found to the present day. The children were,

73. Cynthia, born March 12, 1774, at New Marlborough, Mass., died Oct. 28, 1842, at Livonia, Livingston County, New York. She married Uriel Beman at New Marlborough, Mass., April 29, 1805, and in 1812, they removed to Livonia, Livingston County, New York, where the family afterwards resided. In the summer of 1814 Beman was bitten by a mad dog from the effects of which he died July 13, 1814. The children were, Edward, born June 1, 1806; Evaline, born Nov. 25, 1807, and Cynthia, born Sept. 28, 1813. Some of the descendants of Edward still reside in the county— one Jennie A. Beman at Lima, New York.

74. Jared [96] born July 8, 1781.

75. Daniel [104] born March 14, 1783.

76. THOMAS⁴ [56] (Thomas³, Jared², Thomas¹) born August 17, 1764, at Suffield, Conn. On August 25, 1785, he deeded 28 acres of land which he inherited from his father, to his brother-in-law Eli Warner and removed to (then) Ontario County, N. Y., where he bought land. He married there but the compiler has not been able to learn whom. However, he had four sons,

77. Thomas, born about 1790. He had a son Thomas, born about 1816, and he a son, Dr. Charles C., of Palmyra, New York, born about 1842, and died after 1878. The compiler has not been able to learn much of this descent. Dr. Charles C. said in a letter in 1878 he had no records—nothing but tradition.

79. Daniel, born about 1796; died before 1878.

96. JARED⁵ [74] (Dan⁴, Jared³, Jared², Thomas¹) born July 8, 1781, at New Marlborough, Berkshire County, Mass., and died at Ellsworth, Mahoning County, Ohio, November 9, Jared Huxley.

1871, being 90 years 4 months and 1 day old. He married first Electa (Callender) Whiting, March —, 1807. She was born September 30, 1777, in Sheffield, Mass., and died June 5, 1847, at Ellsworth, Ohio. She was the second daughter of Reuben and Abigail Callender of Sheffield, Mass., (her older sister's name being Annis) and at the time of her marriage, the widow of Roger Whiting who was born Dec. 23, 1778, and died May 13, 1804. The Callender family was of Scotch origin, coming from the town of Callender in Perthshire in Central Scotland, about 1700, or perhaps earlier. Reuben was a land owner and a farmer by occupation in Sheffield; the recorded "Ear-mark for his creatures is a half cross, the under side of the right ear and a half penny cut on the upper side of the left ear. Entered April 1, 1777."

He and four of his five brothers, Joseph, Amos, Nathaniel and Ezekel, all had Revolutionary War Service records. For Reuben's Services see Military Services of Huxleys and maternal ancestors of Huxleys.

Second Jared married Harriet Minard Sept. 30, 1850. She was born January 13, 1804, died February 20, 1871. No children by this marriage.

Berkshire County, Mass., is world renowned for the wild and picturesque beauty of its natural scenery and in modern days is an attractive resort for tourists. Such places as Monument Mountain, Icy Glen, The Stockbridge Bowl, and October Mountain are found there. The far famed Tipping Rock is near the Huxley seat. This rock is of enormous weight and rests on two pivotal points, but is so perfectly balanced that a man with his hand can easily set it a rocking. He was a land owner in Berkshire County, but sold it and invested the proceeds in land in the Connecticut Western Reserve and received a deed from Thomas Huntington and his wife of Canaan, Conn., dated February 8, 1814, for 418 acres in section 2 in Ellsworth, Ohio. He at once set about preparing to move to Ohio, and during the summer completed his preparations and started Monday, Sept. 19, 1814, in company with his brother Daniel [104] and their families. They made the journey with ox teams, following the "Old Indian Trail" through the state of New York and northern Pennsylvania. About 1800 and for a time thereafter the route traveled was across New Jersey and by way of Reading and Harrisburgh, Pa., to Pittsburgh, and thence to the mouth of the Beaver river, and up the Beaver and Mahoning to Youngstown and Warren. Later the northern route was used by Massachusetts and Connecticut emigrants, but the larger part of the route lay through a dense forest of heavy timber with only blazed trees to indicate the way.

His deed was recorded November 14, 1814, indicating that he did not reach Ohio till late in the fall. A settlement of a dozen or more families had been made at the center of Ellsworth, but none except Philo Spaulding in the southern part where section 2 was. The family remained at the center through the winter, and the following spring the work of clearing the farm of timber and making a home began in dead earnest, and the rugged life of the pioneer, with all of its privations and toil and danger, was met and lived through with the same indomitable courage that enabled the men of his class and day to subdue the Western Reserve and make it the dwelling place of the freemen who then inhabited and ever since have inhabited it.

In due course of years the farm was cleared of timber, a comfortable brick house and other suitable structures built, and the latter years of his life were spent on the farm in a quiet, unassuming way. At first the customary log house was built in a few days after going upon the land and used for a few years. The brick house was built in about 1825, consisting of 8 rooms and is still in use nearly in its original form, and in a fairly good state of preservation. The great open fireplace for a wood fire, so common at that time, has long since fallen into disuse; but when used was capable of taking in wood four feet long, and with the great backlog, and a large forestick resting on huge andirons, indeed made a roaring fire for a cold winter day. The iron crane hung securely upon the right jamb of the fireplace, and supplied with several iron hooks of different lengths was the means of using the fire for cooking. An adjustable hook consisting of two parts, forming a curious kind of combination between a swivel and a toggle, furnished further means of adjusting the kettle to the fire. The barns have been moved and remodeled and much improved. The title to his land has wholly passed out of the family and no Huxleys remain in Ellsworth township where the settlement was first made in Ohio in 1814.

He was genial and affable, and singularly free from guile of any kind, and was not suspicious of the purposes of others. He was especially beloved by his grandchildren, as well as by the children of the neighborhood, who always felt free and happy at grandpa Huxley's where they were always welcome.

Physically he was a man of large frame, strongly and compactly built, inclining to corpulency in later years, and to a large degree free from the infirmities and weaknesses usually incident to old age. He was able, and did continue to work on his farm, not from necessity, but from choice, to near the close of life. It is related of him that on his 83rd birthday, as a trial to see how well he retained his physical vigor, he mowed with a scythe one acre of good meadow grass in one-half day without serious fatigue. This was as much as a full hand with a scythe, before the days of mowing machines, was expected to do.

He never sought public preferment, but rather loved the "quiet middle way" with the simplicities of his rural home, and the society of the neighbors among whom he lived well respected by all who knew him.

His children, all by his first wife, were,

97. Socrates Loveland [145] born June 20, 1809.

She was born October 15, 1786, and was the fourth daughter of Reuben and Martha (Enmons) Callender, of Sheffield, Berkshire County, Mass., and a half sister of Electa, wife of Jared Huxley [96]. In the vital records of Sheffield, Mass., she is named Rene. After the death of Daniel, Loraine married William Bailey, May 28, 1828, and a daughter, Adaline Loraine Bailey was born April 8, 1829. She married Samuel Johnson, a railroad engineer, and they reside at Cleveland, Ohio. Loraine died April 21, 1844. Daniel was a farmer by occupation and the owner of 200 acres of land in Ellsworth upon which they lived, and which descended to his children in equal shares at his death. None of his descendants now live on the land.

He came to Ohio from Massachusetts in 1814 as stated in No. (96) and the land was bought with the proceeds of land sold in Massachusetts before starting for Ohio.

His wife Harriet was received into the church by letter in 1835." In 1830 he became the owner of 103 acres of land in Batavia, and in 1841, of 50 acres in Bethany, Genesee County, New York, which he bought from his brother Albert, and to which he moved in 1841, and engaged in farming. Emmons then shot himself, both dying within an hour. It is understood the fatal act was the result of family and business difficulties. The parties lived together for three years, and their relations have been pleasant up to a year ago. Mr. Huxley leaves a wife and three married daughters. Emmons leaves a wife and two children. Both parties were well known and respected, and the double tragedy causes intense excitement."

Minor here, daughter of the late Matthew Minor, Jr., Esq., July 14, 1837. After some years spent in practice in this town, there being a vacancy in Goshen, Conn., he removed there, where he has since had an extensive practice."

In the History of Goshen, Conn., at page 340, it is said, "Dr. Asahiel Mack Huxley practiced in the town for many years, and there never was a physician more generally honored, never one more confided in, never one who took a greater interest in his patients, or responded more readily to their calls than he."

His name will be found among the soldiers of the civil war and the occasion of his death is described in the same history at page 84, which is, that "He had been attending his sick son Matthew H., at Alexandria, Va. 145. SOCRATES LOVELAND⁶ [97] (Jared⁵, Dan⁴, Jared³, Jared², Thomas¹) born June 20, 1809, at New Marlborough, Berkshire County, Mass., died at Ellsworth, Ohio, August 5, 1868. His genuine autograph in 1837 appeared thus:
 Married Paulina
 Spaulding, October 9,
 1834, at Ellsworth,
 Ohio. She was the eldest daughter of Philo Spaulding and Amanda (Bingham) Spaulding and was born March 30, 1810, at Norfolk, Litchfield County, Conn., and died at Youngstown, Mahoning County, Ohio, September 2, 1890. Her maternal grandfather, Ozias Bingham, and her paternal grandfather, Isaac Spaulding, both had Revolutionary War Service records, which see in Military Services of Huxleys and their maternal ancestors. But in addition to this her great grandfather, Jacob Spaulding, of Norfolk, Conn., born December 17, 1732, was a farmer of considerable property, which he freely devoted to the Revolutionary cause and at the first alarm he enlisted as a Private in Capt. Andrew Backus' company and marched "from the town of Plainfield for the relief of Boston in the Lexington alarm April, 1775." He was also by the Colonial Assembly of Connecticut from 1772 to 1775 appointed as Ensign of the North company of Norfolk, and he was most commonly called Ensign

Spaulding. He served in the French and Indian war with the rank of second lieutenant by the appointment of the Assembly, in the 4th Regiment, of which Eleazor Fitch was Colonel and Israel Putnam was Lieutenant Colonel, from 1757 to 1762, and was present at the taking of Quebec by General Wolfe. In the Revolutionary War in addition to his own services, and his two sons Isaac and Daniel, who were in the service he hired a man and put him in the service and paid him $8.00 per month all through the war and took care of his wife and two children. At one time he collected 120 head of cattle for beef and took them to the army as a donation, 5 of these were his own contribution. His house was a retreat for sick and wounded soldiers; thirty were sent to him at one time to be kept for the winter, and in the spring twenty-eight returned to the army for service.

The Spaulding family was of pure English extraction; the first ancestor probably came from the town of Spalding in Lincolnshire, England; at all events he was "Edward Spolden" who settled at Braintree, Mass., in 1630, and in 1634 was made a freeman. Of this sturdy immigrant settler the 15,300 Spaldings since that time to the present in the United States are the direct descendants. They are inhabitants of every state in the union, and many of them have attained eminent distinction, in military, political, religious, literary, and commercial life. Many public officers, lawyers, judges, ministers and bishops bear the name throughout the United States. The genealogy of the "Spaulding" family shows that more than 1,000 Spauldings were in service during the civil war of 1861-65, filling every rank known to the service from Brigadier General down to private.

Huxley was a farmer by occupation and owned 100 acres, being a part originally bought by his father from Thomas Huntington. He was an industrious and prosperous farmer, and kept his farm in good order, and his buildings were substantial and adequate for the farm. He was a firm believer in the anti-slavery sentiment that grew up and was rife in his day, and it was said his house was a station on the "Underground Railway." However this may have been, the compiler does not now remember of seeing colored passengers either arriving at or leaving his house who were on their way through; but it was certain that he acted politically from about 1840, with those looking to the immediate abolition of slavery in the United States, until it was finally accomplished and after that he was a Republican in politics but never held any office. During anti-slavery times from 1840 to 1861 all of the anti-slavery literature of the day, such as "The Anti-Slavery Standard," "The Anti-Slavery Bugle," "The Homestead Journal," "Helper's Impending Crisis," "Life of Frederick Douglass," Wm. Lloyd Garrison's "Liberator," "Uncle Tom's Cabin," etc., with the speeches and writings therein contained of Stephen S. Foster, Parker Pillsbury, James Monroe, Wendell Phillips, John A. Collins, Abbey Kelly, Hon. Gerret Smith, Isaac Knapp and many others—mighty war horses of the anti-slavery movement—were found in his house and were read by his growing sons from their earliest youth up, and doubtless had a large influence in forming and settling their future political ideas.

among similar sketches of members of the bar at pages 224 and 280. "Jared Huxley, second son of Socrates L. and Paulina (Spaulding) Huxley, was born at Ellsworth, Ohio, July 23, 1840. He grew up on his father's farm of 100 acres and from youth was familiar with all kinds of farm work. Indeed, during the years in which he was 15 and 16 years old, owing to the illness of his father, and his inability to give any attention to the business of the farm, Jared, with the aid of his younger brother, Philo [228], took entire charge of the farm business, and they did all of the work on it in the same manner and to the same extent as it had before been done; raised the customary crops, did the harvesting and cared for and fed the live stock, and even found some time to assist the neighbors for wages. Nor did they fail to attend the public school during the winter term.

"After the usual attendance at the public schools he attended a few terms at Cottage Hill Academy at Ellsworth, Ohio, and in the winter of 1860-1 he began teaching in the public schools, which occupation he continued at intervals both in Ohio and Indiana till his admission to the bar. After his academic studies began he earned all of the means used by him in securing an education and was free from debt when admitted to the bar. In 1864 he graduated from a Commercial College at Cleveland, Ohio, and in 1867, from the Scientific course at Oberlin College. During the Civil War he was a clerk for about two years in the Quartermaster's Department, first at Nashville, Tenn., under S. B. Brown, Captain and A. Q. M., in charge of transportation, and secondly, with John A. Stewart, Captain and A. Q. M., disbursing quartermaster at Mobile, Alabama. For four years prior to his admission to the bar he was Professor of Mathematics and Lecturer on the Practice and Theory of Accounts two years at the Star City Business College, Lafayette, Ind., and two years at Felton and Bigelow's Business College at Cleveland, Ohio. During these four years he found sufficient time to pursue his law studies and qualify himself for admission to the bar. While teaching in the public schools in Martinsville, Indiana, he studied law in the office of McNutt & Grubbs and was admitted in Morgan County, Ind., but did not begin practice there. In Cleveland he studied in the office of Palmer & DeWolf, and was admitted to the bar of Ohio, at Norwalk, Huron County, Ohio, on April 3, 1871. He began practice at once in Canfield, Mahoning County, Ohio, and on removal of the county seat to Youngstown in August, 1876, he removed there and is still engaged in the general practice of his profession."

He has always been a Republican in politics, and for some years after settling in Youngstown was quite active politically, frequently joining in the campaign discussion of the political issues of the day, but never held any elective office. After the organization of the Circuit Court in Ohio in 1884, he was a member of the Circuit Court Judicial Committee for the 7th circuit, composed of fourteen counties and for six years its chairman. He is a director of the Home Savings and Loan Company at Youngstown, an institution which has grown from nothing to $450,000 of assets in ten years, and is Chairman of its Finance Committee, and annual Auditor of its accounts. He was five years secretary of the Mahoning County Agricultural Society—was never a member of any secret order, and is a bachelor, and he enjoys the singular reputation where he practices law of being an honest lawyer. He is the owner of a comfortable home in a good part of the city, in which he lives with his widowed sister, who has charge of his household affairs.

228. PHILO⁷ [148] (Socrates L.⁶, Jared⁵, Dan⁴, Jared³, Jared², Thomas¹) born Dec. 5, 1841, at Ellsworth, Ohio, died July 31, 1898, at Salem, Ohio. He married Evaline Cessna, Dec. 17, 1864. She is the fourth daughter of John Cessna and Jane (Cook) Cessna and was born Sept. 5, 1840, and resides at Salem, Ohio. John Cessna came from Bedford County, Pa., when a young man and by the use of the good business qualities which he possessed, amassed a large acreage of land—about 1,000 acres—and much other property. He was a farmer, but his more profitable business was dealing in cattle or as then called "Cattle Droving," as in those days cattle were driven east over the mountains on foot in droves of 100 head or more.

Philo grew up on his father's farm and received a common school education, and a few terms at Cottage Hill Academy in Ellsworth. October 7, 1861, he enlisted in Co. C, 6th O. V.

Cryer's Co.) which was mostly raised at Salem, Ohio, and upon the appointment of the non-commissioned officers he was appointed a Sergeant and performed the duties of Orderly Sergeant. His regiment passed into the command of General Fremont and General Sigel in the Shenandoah valley, and in that campaign in the summer of 1862, he participated in the battles at Woodstock, Mount Jackson, Luray Court House, Warrenton, Bull Run, Seven Oaks, and Fredericksburg. On Dec. 12, 1862, he was discharged at Hall's Farm south of Washington, on Surgeon's certificate of disability, from which maladies he never recovered and from which he finally died.

In 1863 and a part of 1864 he was Deputy Clerk of Courts in Mahoning County, and on August 5, 1863, he was commissioned by David Tod, Governor of Ohio, as First Lieutenant of Co. E, 2d Regiment of Ohio Militia in Ellsworth, Ohio, of which company Ward Dean was Captain. In the latter part of 1864 he went back to the army service as Chief Clerk for John A. Stewart, Captain and A. Q. M., and was at the front in all of the campaign about Atlanta, and through Georgia and remained in this service till after the close of the war.

He bought a farm and somewhat later the farm his father formerly owned in Ellsworth and engaged in farming. While living in Ellsworth he was elected Justice of the Peace, was Secretary of the Mahoning County Agricultural Society, Master of the Goshen Grange of the Patrons of Husbandry, No. 1003 and in 1880 was appointed United States Census Enumerator for Ellsworth. About 1882 he removed to Salem, Ohio, where he became Secretary and Treasurer of the Salem Plow Co., and Cashier of the Banking House of H. Greiner & Son, which position he held at the time of his death. He was a member of Trescott Post, No. 10, G. A. R., and of Amity Lodge, No. 124, I. O. O. F. His children are,
